Eton College King's Scholarship Examination 2023

GENERAL II

(One and a half hours)

Remember to write your candidate number on every sheet of answer paper used.

You must answer both questions.

Each question is worth the same number of marks.

You need not answer the questions in the order set, but you must start each one on a separate piece of paper.

Spend about 45 minutes on each question.

Do not turn over until told to do so.

GENERAL II

Question 1: START A NEW SHEET OF PAPER NOW

Below is an extract from Seamus Heaney's Nobel Lecture, 'Crediting Poetry', given on 7th December 1995 in Stockholm.

- I credit poetry for making this space-walk possible. I credit it immediately because of a line I wrote fairly recently instructing myself (and whoever else might be listening) to "walk on air against your better judgement". But I credit it ultimately because poetry can make an order as true to the impact of external reality and as sensitive to the inner laws
- of the poet's being as the ripples that rippled in and rippled out across the water in that scullery bucket fifty years ago. An order where we can at last grow up to that which we stored up as we grew. An order which satisfies all that is appetitive in the intelligence and prehensile in the affections. I credit poetry, in other words, both for being itself and for being a help, for making possible a fluid and restorative relationship between the
- mind's centre and its circumference, between the child gazing at the word "Stockholm" on the face of the radio dial and the man facing the faces that he meets in Stockholm at this most privileged moment. I credit it because credit is due to it, in our time and in all
- time, for its truth to life, in every sense of that phrase.

...

- In one of the poems best known to students in my generation, a poem which could be said to have taken the nutrients of the symbolist movement and made them available in capsule form, the American poet Archibald MacLeish affirmed that "A poem should be equal to: / Not true." As a defiant statement of poetry's gift for telling truth but telling it slant, this is both cogent and corrective. Yet there are times when a deeper need enters,
- when we want the poem to be not only pleasurably right but compellingly wise, not only a surprising variation played upon the world, but a re-tuning of the world itself. We want the surprise to be transitive like the impatient thump which unexpectedly restores the picture to the television set, or the electric shock which sets the fibrillating heart back to its proper rhythm. We want what the woman wanted in the prison queue in Leningrad,
- standing there blue with cold and whispering for fear, enduring the terror of Stalin's regime and asking the poet Anna Akhmatova if she could describe it all, if her art could be equal to it. And this is the want I too was experiencing in those far more protected circumstances in Co. Wicklow when I wrote the lines I have just quoted, a need for poetry that would merit the definition of it I gave a few moments ago, as an order "true

(a) Read the extracts from Seamus Heaney's 'Crediting Poetry' on page 2.

	(i)	Heaney praises poetry for 'its truth to life, in every sense of that phrase' (line 13). What are the different senses of the phrase that Heaney explores?
		[4]
	(ii)	Heaney repeatedly praises poetry as being a force of order. Why and how might a poem create such order?
		[3]
	(iii)	Heaney quotes Archibald MacLeish's affirmation:
		A poem should be equal to: Not true
		Giving specific examples from the extract, discuss the idea that poetry aims to capture what is 'not true'.
		[5]
(b)	The lines Write it d	iction in the space between on your page of memories own but it doesn't mean t just telling stories
(Tracy Chap		napman.)
	To what	extent do you agree that art can never completely capture reality?
		[13]
		[Total mark for Question 1: 25]

GENERAL II

Question 2: START A NEW SHEET OF PAPER NOW

Write a response, in whatever form seems appropriate, to ONE of the following. It is recommended that you write no more than 700 words.

EITHER

(a) To what extent can studying the past teach us about the future, if at all?

OR

(b) Can we make moral judgements about people from different times and places from our own? Why or why not?

OR

(c) If you could get rid of all pain (mental and physical), would you? Why or why not?

[Total mark for Question 2: 25]

END OF PAPER